Nazi Parachute Attack Fails

By NOLAND NORGAARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 23 (AP)---German parachute troops were dropped behind the Allied lines in Tunisia in a vain attempt to break the successful resistance to the Axis tank push down the Kebir river and the Ousseltia valley, but most of them were quickly rounded up, Allied headquarters announced today.

It was not disclosed immediately whether the parachutists were demolition squads attempting to destroy the bridges and other vital structures or fighting forces trying to seize positions in the Allied rear.

GERMANS FLEEING TRIPOLI BATTERED

CAIRO, Jan. 23 (AP)—Tripoli, last outpost of Mussolini's once-proud 1,000,000 square mile African empire, fell today before the assault of the British Eighth Army in a smashing climax to the long-drawn Libyan campaign.

An official announcement said forward elements of the Eighth Army had entered the city at 5 a. m. after battering through outer defenses shattered by a heavy artillery and aerial bombardment.

The Germans left a strong body in the burning city but this rear guard was driven back, directly into the aerial rain of death with which Allied fighter-bombers were pounding the roads west of Tripoli, a communique said.

"Great damage was inflicted on excellent targets," the official bulletin noted, "and as far as 60 miles west small shipping in the harbor at Zuara was reported damaged in a miniature Dunkirk."

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP)—British light naval units today bombarded Zuara in Tripolitania, 60 miles west of Tripoli, the admiralty announced. Good results were said to have been achieved and large fires and explosions observed.

AXIS ADMITS DEFEAT

Through the final stages of the attack the British said the enemy air defense was not on a big scale.

The Italian high command in a Rome broadcast announced Axis forces had evacuated Tripoli, but said fighting continued south of the Libyan capital.

Berlin likewise officially acknowledge the loss of Tripoli.

The British disclosed the forces that occupied the city moved in from the east and the south after having occupied Castel Verde yesterday.

Enemy transport columns that streamed westward toward Tunisia provided the prime targets for the Allied fighter-bomber force.

POUNDED BY YANKS

U. S. medium bombers and fighter-bombers pounded the retreating Axis columns during daylight hours Friday near Tripoli and to the westward, a U. S. headquarters communique said.

The attacks and ground strafing started numerous fires among moving vehicles, the announce-

SALSK CAPTURED, REDS SWEEP ON

MOSCOW, Jan. 23 (AP)—Soviet troops, smashing through the German defense lines along the Manych waterway, have captured the railroad center and air base of Salsk, 100 miles southeast of Rostov.

They have also dispersed fresh German forces which for a time threatened to slow the Russian advance in the southwestern sectors, dispatches from the front said today.

The German high command said that its "disengagement movement in the northern Caucasus is proceeding according to plan." The high command communique, broadcast from Berlin, declared that a Nazi counter attack had driven the Russians eastward within the Don area. The invasion group trapped before Stalingrad was said to have halted the "deep enemy breach" in its western line.

The German defenses before Salsk failed to halt the Red army any more than had the rear guard actions of Axis units in the central Caucasus, it was reported, and the Russian advance now was said to be proceeding in both of those major sectors at a breathtaking pace.

Red army drives have carried to within 10 miles of the important Ukrainian city of Voroshilovgrad, drives aimed at reducing its worth as a transportation center and also at flanking Kharkov to the north.

The Red army also reported that it took Konstantinovskaya, on the north bank of the Don river 75 miles northeast of Rostov.

Voroshilovgrad, industrial and rail center, and an important communications network of which it is the apex, were pictured in a later communique as threatened.

RUSSIA—Red army troops push the Nazis out of Salsk, important rail junction and Nazi air base, and encircle Voroshilovgrad, north of Rostov. Twin drives toward Kharkov and another toward Kursk continue.

Will Italy Revolt?

From Lisbon, best neutral "listening post" in Europe, Burnet Hershey has just returned to New York with the following first-hand data on how the fall of Tripoli is likely to affect Italy.

By BURNET HERSHEY

(Copyright, 1943, by International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—With the fall of Tripoli, last remnant of Mussolini's African empire, there will be a revival of the report Italy may seek a separate peace.

In Lisbon, I received information which indicated events which would bring about Italy's collapse. In order of likely sequence, they follow:

1—Realization Italy has lost its empire.

2—Increased bombing of Italy's industrial cities and ports.

3—Start of the battle of Italy on Italian soil.

No conquered country in Europe is today riper for revolt than Italy. The stage is all set for the melodrama. The actors are standing by, but there is no one with enough strength to raise the curtain.

DUCE STILL IN CONTROL

That is why it is still early to attach too much importance to the rumors of a separate peace. Mussolini, though ill, is still in nominal control of the regime dominated by the Nazis.

It is the opinion of Allied leaders that nothing but more bombings and the presence on Italian soil of Allied military opposition to both the Nazi and Fascist authority can alter the present situation.

When the change does come, it is expected to take one of two courses: a popular uprising or a "palace" revolt.

I have also received an official interpretation, in London, of Allied policy with relation to Italy. Plainly, it was that Italy must be BOMBED out of the war; not INVITED out.

In Lisbon I heard from recently arrived Italians themselves the admission they expected to lose their boasted African empire; that the Allies had completely destroyed large, expensively equipped Italian forces; that their air force has been practically annihilated; that their merchant marine has been chased from the seas and destroyed, and that their fleet has been so shattered it dare not leave the safety of its harbors.

BOMBING BIG FACTOR

Those admissions were followed up by the disclosure that the bombings of Italy have produced both psychological and political repercussions which have ripened the kingdom for plucking by the Allies.

Turin, great industrial city in the north, is demolished; Genoa, Milan and Naples are in complete chaos. All over Italy there is a panicky, improvised evacuation of civilians which is cluttering up transportation and aggravating an already serious housing condition.

In Rome the panic is greater than elsewhere. But it is political panic. More than bombs, food shortages, or even the iron heel of the Gestapo, the Fascist government fears the effect of the African defeats on the populace.

The Fascists are now aware that Italy has suddenly become the next major battlefield in this war.

With the German army fighting with its back to the sea and faced with the prospect of a Dunkirk, Mussolini is unable to check the torrent of anger and bitterness which, my informants say, will soon sweep over the kingdom to engulf the Fascist regime.

ALLIES SMASH LAST JAPS ON PAPUA

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 23 (AP)—Organized Japanese resistance in Papua ended at 2:05 p. m., local time, yesterday when the last two remaining pockets of an enemy which once numbered 15,000 were wiped out by victorious American and Australian forces.

The last to fall was a group of Japs on the coast northwest of Sanananda. Attacked in the early morning by Australians, the enemy resisted bitterly but withdrew a short distance. Artillery and mortars softened the new defense and an afternoon attack crumpled the enemy.

The Japanese still retain bases at Salamaua, 150 miles northwest of the Buna-Sanananda point battlegrounds, and the sister port of Lae.

Two days ago the Americans cleaned out the main Japanese pocket two miles from the coast along Soputa track, using heavy artillery and mortar fire. A small unit was left on the north side of the track.

Total of 475 dead were counted in that area.

At 7 a. m. yesterday, 33 Japanese members of this unit attempted to escape. Americans killed 32 and imprisoned the remaining one.

The Americans subjected the few remaining Japs to well-organized mortar and artillery fire. Shortly after midday, the Americans reported the Japs cleaned out.

Some 1200 Jap casualties have been counted in the Sananda area to date. A total of 898 were previously killed in the Gona area, making a Jap dead list of 2100 in this sector.

Asleep in Berth 13, Ensign's Wife Slain

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 23 (AP)—An attractive woman identified by police as Mrs. Martha Virginia Brinson James, 21, wife of Ensign Richard F. James of the Naval air station at Seattle, was slain mysteriously in a Pullman berth of a southbound train today and a man-hunt for the killer got under way shortly thereafter.

Sheriff Herbert Shelton of Albany, Ore., said the object of the hunt was a Negro who apparently leaped from the train.

Farmers and townspeople joined peace officers in posses which spread out quickly over the countryside.

The woman was identified by a birth certificate in her luggage. She was en route to Los Angeles.

She had occupied lower berth No. 13.

The woman's throat had been cut with a blunt knife, Coroner Poole said.

Marine Pvt. Harold R. Wilson of San Diego, who occupied upper 13, told Police Sergt. Harold Skipworth of Eugene he was awakened about 4 a. m. by a woman's scream; that he looked out and saw a man jump from lower 13 and run to the rear of the Pullman.

The young woman fell from her berth a moment afterward, Wilson reported. By the time Wilson had climbed down from his upper berth she was dead, he said.

Police said considerable money was found among the woman's possessions, indicating robbery was not the motive.

Pvt. Wilson gave a minute description of the man—five feet, 10 inches tall, dark complexioned, curly hair combed straight back and wearing a brown suit with white pin stripes.

Skipworth said a Negro fitting this general description had been seen on the train but could not be found when it stopped at Eugene.

A vestibule door of the train was found open and the conductor said the man could have left the train at Aangent, Ore.

THIS IS HOSPITALITY—Dalmatian Chummy of Boston Fire Alarm headquarters found a shivering Scotty last night in the Fenway . . . took him to his quarters and shared his bunk with him. Today, the Scotty went home.

DOG'S BEST FRIEND? A DOG!

Chummy, Firemen's Mascot, Proves It

This is a story about a dog's best friend being a dog.

Chummy, the year-old Dalmatian mascot of the crew at Boston fire alarm headquarters, the Fenway, has his own bed, especially made for him by firemen.

He's proud of it, too, say Operators John Alearn and Howard Burns of the night staff, and he knows it belongs to him alone, because it has his name plate on it.

When Chummy returned from his outing yesterday he was accompanied by a shivering black Scotty, which he politely led to his private bed. The two shared the bunk. From a tag on the Scotty's collar, firemen learned he was owned by a Fenway resident and apparently had been inadvertently locked out.

He went back home today, after spending a warm, comfortable night, thanks to Chummy.

KEROSENE DELAYED, BUT COLD SNAP ENDS

Despite thawing weather this afternoon and a promise of week-end temperatures below freezing, thousands of Greater Boston homeowners face a cold and bleak 72 hours.

Two shipments of kerosene, which were expected to reach here today, according to OPA fuel officials, failed to arrive.

Even should they come late tonight, it was reported, hundreds of metropolitan fuel oil dealers could not replenish their empty tanks before Monday.

Another discouraging report given out by officials is that even with the arrival of these two shipments, the supply will only be sufficient for "about one day."

While there is approximately a five-day supply of furnace oil (fuel oil No. 2) on hand here, officials warn that every economy should be made by home-owners.

They point out that in the past this type of fuel has been arriving on a fairly regular schedule, but no assurance can be given that future deliveries will be as large—or as regular.

Washington authorities announce the date for redemption of No. 4 fuel oil coupon has been advanced one week. This makes them usable in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont on Feb. 2. In Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut these coupons may be "cashed" on Jan. 31.

Rhode Island war plants, unable to operate owing to a lack of heavy fuel oil, are starting to shut down. Gov. McGrath of that state reports 50,000 war workers face idleness.

Missing Girl, 8, Only Visiting Revere Chum

Eight-year-old Loretta Jason, eldest of five children of Mr. and Mrs. August Jason of Shirley st., Revere, was found today—snugly tucked in bed, and playing with colored crayons—in the home of a neighbor, Mrs. Esther Mickelman of DeHone st.

It all happened this way, according to Loretta:

"I was kept after school for being late. On my way home, I met Marilyn (the 8-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mickelman) and I went home with her.

"It was nice and warm there and I decided to spend the night with Marilyn."

In the meantime, police had been combing the neighborhood for the youngster who had "vanished" after leaving Walcott school, where she's in the third grade, shortly before 3 p. m. yesterday.

Besides Loretta, there are four younger children in the Jason family. They are Lillian, 6; Rose Mary, 4; August, Jr., 2, and 7-month-old Jeanette.

Only a few hours before Loretta disappeared, the infant sister had been taken to Revere General Hospital critically ill with pneumonia. The father recently was given a medical discharge from the Navy. The family are in straightened circumstances, according to police, and are living in a couple of cold rooms.

Two other missing children, Daniel O'Brien of Chestnut st. and Jack Riggs of Summer st., each 13, of Malden, are being hunted in the metropolitan area. They last were seen at South Station.

FLYNN TAKES STAND AGAIN IN ENVOY ROW

By WILLIAM S. NEAL

WASHINGTON, JAN. 23 (INS)—Edward J. Flynn resumed the witness stand today in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on his fitness to become minister to Australia and flatly denied testimony he obtained entree into the White House for a client of his law firm who was accused of illegally entering the United States.

His denial was made in connection with the charge of Paul Kern, former president of the New York Civil Service Commission, who testified yesterday that Flynn had been instrumental in obtaining White House invitations for Serge Rubinstein, who Kern said entered the country under a faulty passport.

When Flynn concluded his testimony the committee announced that the hearing had ended and that a meeting would be held next Wednesday to vote on whether or not to recommend confirmation of his nomination to the Senate.

Resuming the stand, Flynn said there were "some things I'd like to clear up about which there is some confusion."

"The statement that I got invitations for Mr. Rubeinstein to the White House—nothing could be farther from the truth.

"As far as the card is concerned admitting him to the White House grounds, any one of you gentlemen know how members of large parties are given cards. There is nothing unusual in regard to that."

MAYOR WON'T TELL

A few moments before Flynn took the stand, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York—testifying after originally notifying the committee he preferred to submit a statement without appearing—refused to express an opinion on Flynn's fitness to be the new Australian minister.

Sen. Bridges (R.) of New Hampshire, who had before him newspaper clippings in which LaGuardia had assailed Flynn, asked him if he believed a corrupt and crooked person should be appointed ambassador.

"No," replied LaGuardia.

"Have you made such references to the nominee?" asked Bridges.

"Now, look here," said LaGuardia, glaring at Bridges, "Mr. Flynn and I have been bitter political opponents for a long time. I've said some things and he has said some things. I've licked Mr. Flynn every time we've clashed."

'DOC JASPER' FACES COURT WEDNESDAY

Dr. Harry "Doc Jasper" Sagansky, $90,000,000 numbers pool operator, had a busy 10 days in prospect today, with a date in Boston Municipal Court Wednesday and preparations waiting to be made for his trial on bribery charges in Middlesex court Feb. 1.

The Boston court appearance will be for a hearing on lottery charges, resulting from state police roundups of Sagansky and 23 other persons.

To make sure the busy doctor doesn't forget about his appointment in Middlesex, Judge William C. Giles ordered $50,000 bonds from each of two sureties, or a total of $100,000.

Also held in bail for appearance in Middlesex court with Sagansky was James J. Carrigan, Jr., Malden business man described as a "go-between" in Sagansky's efforts to persuade city officials to open up Malden for beano games.

Meanwhile, Middlesex Dist. Atty. Bradford sent to OPA headquarters a list of registration numbers of autos owned by Malden men who have been convicted on lottery charges within the last 12 months. He asked that the gas ration books be taken away, as the men have no visible means of support and yet are making extensive use of their cars.

Police chiefs of all Middlesex County communities were asked by Bradford to turn in similar reports for additional OPA action.

Bay State Marine's Death Letter Comes With News of His Passing

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 23—Seriously wounded in action on Guadalcanal, Pvt. Robert J. Ahern, 20, Marine Corps, of Abbe ave., Springfield, wrote a letter to be mailed "only if I die."

Today his parents, Mr. and Mrs Thomas P. Ahern, received the letter simultaneously with a telegram from the Navy Department informing them of his death.

Robert's letter was written as he lay in a Marine hospital suffering from wounds suffered when an enemy shell exploded 10 feet in front of him and blinded him.

He gave the letter to a chaplain with instructions not to mail it if he recovered from a delicate operation decided upon in an effort to save his life.

The opening lines told the whole story:

"If you get this letter you'll know I lost my last battle." Robert wrote to his parents.

He enlisted a year ago with his chum, Thomas J. Maroney, who is still on duty in the Solomons. Besides his parents, he leaves three brothers.

'BEST TUNES OF ALL' ALSO GO TO COURT

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Just before the "Information Please" program began over the NBC network, two announcers were served notice to appear in court next Tuesday to determine whether repetition of a "teaser slogan" in their radio script was "annoying listeners."

The notices were served on Milton Cross and Basil Ruysdael on a writ obtained by Dan Golenpaul, owner and producer of "Information Please."

The slogan heralds a new American Tobacco Co. Lucky Strike program and was repeated ten times in the first broadcast. The slogan was:

"The best tunes of all move to Carnegie Hall. Yes, the best tunes of all move to Carnegie Hall."

"It is my firm belief that the repetitive use of this slogan on 'Information Please' would annoy listeners and mar the entertainment value of the program," Golenpaul said.

"I always insisted upon and obtained control of the entertainment portion of the program and manner of its presentation. My contract with the American Tobacco Co. clearly provides for this control.

It also involves the maintenance of the high standards of 'Information Please' which the public demands."

3 TOWNS VIE FOR TOP FUND HONORS; HOME DRIVE TO BEGIN

Early reports to United War Fund headquarters show Roxbury, Charlestown and Atlantic competing for top honors in the Boston district division. Fund officials announced today as volunteer workers in 49 cities and towns prepared to solicit thousands of homes over the weekend.

First reports in the $7,800,000 campaign for funds to support vital home and war services will be made at a luncheon at the Boston City Club on Monday. Brooks Potter, Metropolitan chairman, announced the organization was functioning in a "truly American manner" despite handicaps of cold weather and lack of gasoline.

Reports from the Public Service Division, he said, show that six public schools already have collected 100 per cent of their quotas.

An attempt to complete its quota in a one-day Sunday drive will be made tomorrow by volunteers of Wellesley, when 625 solicitors plan to visit every home. The town committee chairman John A. Dunn, who devised the plan as a means of conserving rubber, gasoline, time and manpower, urged all Wellesley residents to remain at home Sunday afternoon to await the visits of volunteers.

Fund headquarters announced that the ten Allied nations sharing in the Fund will be honored at the opening report luncheon on Monday. Individual and company subscriptions of $500 and more announced today by the Special Gifts Division include:

Kind-Hearted Man Let's Wife Keep Job

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 23—Executive Director James J. Graham of the employment security division, State Labor Department, today told this story about a male applicant for unemployment benefits.

Asked to explain why he was out of work, the man said:

"We both worked in the same factory and somebody had to be home at night to take care of the kids.

"She (his wife) had seniority rights, so I resigned—she stays on the job and I take care of the children."

Battle Rages Beyond Tripoli

ment said, while many bursts were observed on and along side the road.

American planes caused a large explosion followed by a fire when they dropped incendiaries at a point west of Tripoli. All the U. S. planes returned safely.

Capture of the city placed Montgomery's Eighth Army only 100 miles from the Tunisian border and climaxed an advance of approximately 1300 miles begun last October when he cracked Rommel's line at El Alamein, deep in Egypt.

ROMMEL IN TUNISIA

As the British entered the city remnants of Rommel's battered Africa Corps were reported streaming across the Tunisian frontier to effect a union with Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim's forces defending Tunis, Bizerte, Sfax and Gabes.

The armored vanguard of the Eighth Army rolled into Tripoli just before dawn after having pushed relentlessly ahead through the night. Progress was difficult, as Rommel's final pockets of resistance bristled with anti-tank guns and roads and bridges had been demolished wherever possible.

As the morning sun struck the minarets of Tripoli's many mosques, British tanks were well within the city and the natives were out to welcome them.

Low-flying pilots who had flown over the city yesterday reported that the Karamanli mole had been blown up at its center and base, partly by Allied bombing, and partly through demolition by the Germans. The lighthouse at the end of the Spanish mole was reported destroyed.

MUSSOLINI "NO GOOD"

At Tarhuna, one of Mussolini's model agricultural colony towns south of Tripoli, the entire population of 2000, headed by the mayor, turned out to surrender to a small RAF advance party which was prospecting for a landing ground. A member of the RAF party said:

"They all seemed genuinely glad to see us. One man said 'Mussolini non buono' (Mussolini's no good), with appropriate gestures."

Preceding the entry of Gen. Montgomery's army into the capital, fighter - bombers, including Americans, spent yesterday working on Rommel's fleeing troops along the roads west of Tripoli. When one gasoline tanker was struck 20 vehicles near it went up in flames. Five staff cars which tried to pass the blazing mass were riddled with machine-gun bullets from Allied planes.

The Germans sent out Messerschmitts in force to attempt to halt the fighter-bomber activities, but they were intercepted by Allied fighters and four were shot down.

WHO'LL COMMAND IN AFRICA, EUROPE---EISENHOWER OR??

By GLENN BABB

With Tripoli fallen and expulsion of the Axis from Libya only a question of days the time is at hand for new groupings of the Allied forces and assignment of commands.

A major phase of the war is ending; one of the most brilliant campaigns in history is drawing to a close. Three short months ago nearly the whole 3000-mile extent of Africa's northern coast was in enemy hands. Now the Axis segment is compressed to some 300 miles. Those vast, continental-scale operations, conceived with such bold imagination and carried out, for the most part, with such skill and dash, now give way to a relatively small siege operation.

The junction of the forces of Alexander on the east and Eisenhower in the west is imminent. Who then is to command this group of armies—the British Eighth and First and the American Fifth—which thus become available for combined operations for the conquest of Tunisia and the far vaster campaign against Hitler's Europe to which Tunisia is only the prelude?

London dispatches support the conviction that this and other decisions of the United Nations' grand strategy for 1943 already are in the making. They spoke of "present negotiations" which can be expected to produce "bold planning and precise co-ordination." They certainly imply that somewhere, somehow United Nations leadership is hammering the master plan into shape.

Within a few days the choice for the combined African command probably will become known and the leader then designated may prove to be the man who will lead the American-British invasion of Europe.

The Tunisian show at the outset was Eisenhower's but Alexander and Montgomery come into the picture as heroes of one of the most brilliant chapters in all Britain's long military history. Moreover they are full generals, outranking the others.

But last summer, it has been indicated, high authority in Britain was willing to accept American command for not only the African venture but its European sequel. Eisenhower was chosen then and it may be felt that he has not yet had a chance to prove his capacity.

There is also the possibility that the nomination may go to a man outside the group named, perhaps an American of higher rank than Eisenhower. The United States has two full generals of distinguished records in both world wars, Marshall and MacArthur. On the other hand there may be some significance in the recent elevations to field marshal's rank of Generals Wavell and Gort.

RAF ON 3D NIGHT RAID

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Reports from Folkestone on the southeast coast said RAF planes flew over the Strait of Dover in a steady stream just after dusk tonight and that soon thereafter the sound of explosions was heard on the coast of France.

Tonight's foray followed two successive night bombardments of targets in western Germany, which embraces the great industrial Ruhr valley.

News of last night's raid came from the Berlin radio, which said scattered bombings had caused civilian casualties and some property damage.

German planes struck back by bombing several places in northeastern and southern England last night, but the raids were not on a heavy scale and, while damage was done, casualties were reported light.

A number of German raiders, gliding in above the clouds, bombed and machine-gunned a village in South England this morning, causing considerable damage. There were casualties, including some killed, it was reported.

Hubby Off to Army, Wife To WAACS---And Then!

CHICAGO, Jan. 23 (INS)—"Be a good solider, dear. I'll carry on."

It was Virginia Amour, 23, speaking as she kissed her husband, Frederic Amour, 30, good-by when he left to take his examination for the Army.

When Amour had left to report to Army authorities Virginia turned to her artist spouse's picture on the mantel and said with sudden determination:

"I'm going to help you, Freddie! The sooner we all get into this the sooner it will be over and we can be together again."

An hour later, while Amour was being examined by Army doctors, the determined Virginia was at WAAC headquarters offering her services for the war's duration.

She came home to a lonely apartment that evening for her first dinner without Freddie.

But as she placed her key in the lock the door flew wide to reveal her husband draped in a large apron. He had just whipped up an omelet in the kitchen. He greeted her:

"Surprise, dear! I haven't been accepted!"

She replied:

"Surprise, dear! I have!"

Amour kissed his wife good-by today and she countered with a snappy salute. Amour will keep the home fires burning.

U. S. UNLOADS HUGE WHEAT STORES TO HOLD PRICE DOWN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The government tossed its 235,000,000-bushel stock of wheat on the market today in a move to keep prices from advancing above the parity level.

The wheat was offered at prices equivalent to parity at the point of storage. The national average Dec. 15 was $1.37 a bushel.

The government will add 23 cents a bushel to the 1942 loan rate for grower wheat, at point of storage. For instance, if the loan rate on a particular lot of wheat happened to be $1.10 a bushel, the government would add 23 cents to this, making the sales price $1.33.

In effect, the government told those holding wheat on a speculative basis if they hoped to get more than parity prices for it, they were out of luck.

Officials said today's action was expected to keep market prices from gonig above parity as long as government stocks were available at that price.

Col. Natalie's Flouting of Orders Cited

Refusal of Col. Natalie Hayes Hammond to carry out a drastic reorganization of the Massachusetts Women's Defense Corps three months ago, at the order of Director J. Welles Farley of the State Public Safety Committee, was seen today as the chief reason for her ouster.

In an indirect reply to Gov. Saltonsall's request for a full explanation of Miss Hammond's removal, Farley told the regional officers of the corps he had ordered the reorganization plan, but had been ignored.

The plan, he added, calls for decentralization of power, with much additional authority for the regional officers intsead of the commandant. The corps headquarters will be closed and all activities of the unit more closely coordinated with the state's civilian defense organization.

Another high officer of the corps, former State Senator Sybil Holmes of Brookline, added fuel to the controversy by submitting her resignation as a major and criticizing Farley for the way he has handled the case.

'Pops' Kelly, in Africa Fight, Cited for Honesty

For 19 years, Bobby Kelly of Orchard st., Jamaica Plain, sold peanuts and pop at Fenway Park and Braves Field, a familiar figure to the regular fans.

SANDRA MANNS, 8
Ill, She Saves for Bonds

Today his father and mother had a letter from his Army captain in North Africa, where Bobby is serving with an artillery outfit—and the captain wrote to tell of Bobby's being commended for honesty in returning an Arab's lost pocketbook.

"Your son Robert (Pops to us), being on the modest side, might not send you a copy of the enclosed communication," wrote Capt. Melvin B. Oberstein, "so, to make sure, I'm sending you one."

HONESTY CITED

The commendation enclosed, ordered by Col. Howell of the regiment and signed by Capt. Claude B. Morris, read:

"Commendation: A pocketbook which was lost by one of the neighboring Arabs was returned to him today (Dec. 30) through the honesty of one of the enlisted men of this command—P. F. C. Robert H. Kelly, Service Battery 2, Bu Medium.

"Such action on the part of P.F.C. Kelly is not only indicative of the spirit of the men within this regiment but it has also served to extend the splendid reputation of all Americans in this part of North Africa."

YOUNGEST OF FOUR

Capt. Oberstein said in his letter that he will recommend Bobby for a promotion. He attended Boston Latin School and shifted to English High, then went a year to Suffolk Law School.

Bobby is the youngest of four brothers who sold in the stands for the late Billy Stevens, and during his last two seasons with the Stevens organiation was assistant to Tommy Cummings, who succeeded Billy Delaney.

The brothers are Paul, John and Jim Kelly, the last-named also in the Army.

Exercises Re-Shape, Beautify Thick Legs

Beauty

MOST OF US have been spoiled all along the line in life by attaining things a bit too easily . . . but we do realize that anything worth having is worth great effort . . . and . . . let me tell you . . . you can't beautify thick legs without plenty of effort. But it can be done! Bone structure can't be changed . . . but as long as you walk you use muscle . . . and muscle is malleable stuff. It can be re-shaped.

It won't happen overnight or overmonth . . . this re-shaping of leg muscles . . . but since most gals are exceedingly leg-conscious and very unhappy about even minor faults, we've no doubt that they'll have the patience to work on the following exercises. Work into any leg exercise gradually . . . to prevent extreme muscle soreness!

Stand with ball of the left foot on a book, heel on the floor . . . right leg should be forward, knee bent, heel on floor . . . right hand and weight of the body should rest on the bent knee. This is your starting position.

INTENSIFY BENDING ACTION AT THE KNEE

Then . . . keeping both heels on the floor, push down slowly, and forcibly increase the bend of the right knee. You will feel a pull. The aim is to gradually intensify the bending action at the knee but to keep both heels on the floor. At first, repeat this three times with each leg, and later increase it gradually to eight times.

Here's a nifty exercise. Lie on your back in an L-shaped position, with your toes pointing straight to the ceiling, and your whole outer leg from hip to heel touching the wall. Keep those knees straight, stretch arms out on the floor above the head.

Slide one heel down the wall, bending the knee to the chest. While extending this leg back up the wall, slide the other heel down, bending knee to chest. Push with heel, curling toes toward instep. Keep it up as long as you can . . . rest . . . then do it some more. This is a grand general exercise. After you have the knack of it smoothly, bend the elbows and bring hands to the shoulders as you "pedal."

Arline Gould says exercises will re-shape thick legs . . . and gives you a pair today! Kay Williams poses.

CAPE SLEEVE FOR SPRING

By BETTINA BEDWELL

YOU ARE GOING to be able to tell a new spring model of the dress-up frock from those of an earlier vintage, without any trouble.

There are fashion points to be noticed. One of them is the cape sleeve, very short and very graceful, which is a feature of a good many of the new dresses. Another is the fastening, which is likely to be a row of buttons, or hooks and eyes, or anything but a zipper.

The Claire McCardell dress sketched by Miss Dulin is one of the newcomers, and it is a charmer. It is made of Madonna blue boucle jersey, and has the very short cape sleeves that are so new and so attractive. The high neckline is banded with black velvet ribbon, tied in a bow at the back, and the suede belt is black. Gold hooks and eyes fasten this dress under the left arm. The skirt is draped at the front, and flared slightly.

DAINTY DESSERTS

This Snow Pudding New

By MARTHA LEE

DESSERTS THAT ARE DELICATELY light and full of flavor lead the menu fashion parade in the early months of 1943.

Snow Pudding, as airy and white as its name suggests, is one of the all-time favorites that is being starred more often — and in even more flavorsome variation. The newest version of this light whipped dessert comes from California and combines two of the State's great agricultural products—lemons and wine—to achieve ambrosial flavor. And this dessert uses none of the homemaker's limited supply of butter or cream.

A measure of mellow sherry is added to the Snow Pudding itself, and it also flavors the smooth yellow custard served with the dessert. Sherry accents the tartness of the lemon and gives elegance to the bland custard.

LEMON-SHERRY SNOW PUDDING

1 pkg. unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¾ cup sugar
⅛ tsp. salt
¾ cup hot water
¼ cup sherry wine
¼ cup lemon juice
1 lemon rind, grated
2 egg whites

Soak gelatin in cold water. Dissolve in hot water. Add sugar, and salt. Cool. Then add sherry, lemon juice and grated lemon rind. Set in cool place until gelatin begins to thicken. Then whip with rotary beater until it is very frothy. Beat egg whites until stiff. Fold egg whites into gelatin mixture. Turn into mold which has been rinsed in cold water and chill until firm. Serve with Sherry Custard.

SHERRY CUSTARD

2 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
⅛ tsp. salt
1¼ cups milk
⅛ cup sherry wine
Dash of nutmeg

Combine egg yolks, sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Add the milk and cook over hot water, stirring constantly until mixture coats the spoon. Cool and add the sherry. Top with a dusting of nutmeg.

The use of sherry as a flavoring agent in cooking is not new. In the earliest colonial days, good cooks kept a bottle of it on their pantry shelf for use in custards and puddings of all kinds as well as for flavoring shellfish dishes and soups. It is as an appetizer wine though that sherry has always been best known—and justly. Moderate, mellow amber-colored sherry is the perfect before dinner drink—a favorite with knowing diners everywhere —good served with or without canapes.

Love And Marriage

She's Entitled To Allotment

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
Although we've been married for some time it hasn't been announced. We expect to tell our friends just before he leaves for the Army

Will I be entitled to the $50 allowance which is paid to wives of soldiers? I am employed and not altogether dependent on my husband. ANXIOUS.

The wife of a service man is entitled to the $50 allowance, whether she is employed or not, and whether she married recently or before Pearl Harbor.

When the service man is inducted into the armed forces his commanding officer gives him an opportunity to make application for the allotments to his dependents.

★ ★ ★

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
My husband has been in the Army for six years. Am I entitled to the $28 a month which the government adds to the allowance my husband makes? J. A. C. D.

The government allowance is for enlisted as well as drafted men's families. Of course, if your husband is ranked above the four lowest grades, you will not be entitled to an allowance.

Introducing Daughter

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
My daughter has just been married. When I introduce her, should I add her marriage name in my introduction?
T. E.

Yes. And this is especially important these days, when her new name has been so recently acquired. You should say, "Mrs. Smith, this is my daughter, Mrs. Delafield."

If you were introducing a gentleman to her, you would say, "Dorothy, this is Mr. Robbins," and then make the relationship and name clear to him by saying, "My daughter, Mrs. Delafield."

★ ★ ★

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
I have been invited to a large dinner that is to be given after a church wedding. Should I tip the waiter on such an occasion?
TOM.

No. All expenses of the wedding dinner, including the tips for all service in connection with it, are paid by the bride's family.

Fashion

YOU'LL SEE ALL sorts of versions of "fascinators" around . . . but none more intriguing than this product of a famous millinery designer's imagination, which she calls a "capot." Lilly Dache made this for spring . . . brown cotton mesh laden with multicolor flowers, some crocheted and some made of wooden beads. You'll see a veritable extravaganza of spring bonnets . . . all worn with the simplest of frocks and suits. —ANNICE BRINK.

MANY SYMPHONY subscribers made a day of it yesterday, attending luncheons before the concert at both the Chilton Clubs and the Copley Plaza where a series of Symphony luncheons are held in the Oval Room. Seen at the Copley—Mrs. John Van Nagell looking as chic as a Vogue fashion plate in a gray wool suit appliqued with red hearts and a saucy red chenille beanie. Miss Ellen Coolidge in a twosome with Mrs. James Ropes and Mrs. Sheldon Wardwell in a nice apple green hat to accent her furs.

Intermission at Symphony—Lucy Cochrane and a group of Beantown glamour girls crowding around the handsome British officers who attended in large numbers. Mrs. James Minot bundled into lavish silver fox; Mrs. Daniel de Menocal in her trim Red Cross uniform, Mrs. John S. Ames and Mrs. Allen Forbes.

Horton Says Laughs Needed

Edward Everett Horton, returning in "Springtime for Henry" Monday evening at the Colonial, asserts that he is appearing again in the Benn Levy farce-comedy because he thinks that laughter in the theater is one of the most important means of maintaining war morale.

"In a period of crisis people need relaxation," says the noted comey star, "and they need amusement that will provide this relaxation. A good laugh is a tonic. People who laugh never can be defeated.

"Because I know from experience the capacity to stir laughs in 'Springtime for Henry,' I am reviving it once more as the best example of this type of stage play I know. Then, too, I shall never find again a stage role as congenial as that of Henry Dewlip, the romantic bachelor."

Seats are now on sale at the Colonial box office for the limited engagement of "Springtime for Henry." There will be popular-priced matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

'In Which We Serve,' Sea War Epic, at Loew's on Thursday

"In Which We Serve," the biography of a ship authored, directed and produced by Noel Coward, who is also its leading player, is having its New England premiere on

HUBERT GREGG, NOEL COWARD and GERALD CASE
"In Which We Serve"

Thursday at Loew's Orpheum and State theaters. A war picture made on the other side of the Atlantic, it combines the actuality of an exciting newsreel with the humanity of a great story.

Telling the life history of the H. M. S. Torrin, a destroyer of the Royal Navy from the time she is launched until she sinks in the Mediterranean off Crete, the film also tells the story of the men who serve on her. In a series of flashbacks we see the homes from which they came, their wives, sweethearts and children, and the happy moments they lived with them ashore.

Thus we get to know them: Capt. Kinross, Noel Coward; and his wife, Celia Johnson; chief petty officer Hardy, Bernard Miles; and Shorty Blake, John Mills. We know them in their homes, but we also know them when the dive bombers swoop down upon the decks of the Torrin. We know them, too, when they fling themselves into the sea of oil after their ship is fatally wounded.

The scenes when the Torrin's guns blaze skyward against the enemies' bombs, when they shoot out against a convoy on the distant horizon are all done with realism powerful enough to give us the taste of real battle. Just as moving and real are the home scenes, the emotional episodes in which Capt. Kinross addresses his men, in which he bids them goodbye after the ship is lost.

Sunday Vaudeville Bill for Globe Fans

The Globe's 1-to-11 p. m. vaudeville bill tomorrow features Irving Benson and Harry Ryan, comics; the Wen Hai Troupe, acrobats; Bob Coffey, harmonica player; Green and Lang, vocalists; Weber Bros., wire slackists, and Ralph Elsmore, singer of popular numbers. There is, additionally, the music of Karl Rohde's band and a double feature screen program.

OLYMPIA'S FILMS

"Seven Sweethearts," a pleasant little story featuring Van Heflin with seven of the screen's prettiest girls, including Kathryn Grayson and Marsha Hunt, and "Cat People," with Simone Simon and Kent Smith, are now to be seen on the Washington Street Olympia screen.

NEW HOWARD, GLOBE REVUES

Two prime favorites of local burlesque patrons, Hinda Wassau and Sunya Slane, are headed for the Globe and the Old Howard stages, respectively.

The Globe show, opening with a midnight performance tomorrow night, will spotlight handsome Hinda. It starts at 12:01 a. m. and among its featured performers will be torchy-haired June Marshall, who is a veritable human corkscrew in the mazes of her specialty dance. Other cutie cuticles importantly spotted will be Ray Dean, Roberta Roberts and Lili Lambert.

Jack Diamond and Bert Carr, assisted by Lester Mack, Dick Simmons and Bob Nevins, are the comedy ringleaders. Vaudeville headliners include Tyler and Renaud, comedy knockabout dance act; Ballard and Rae, acrobats; Betty Allen, ballroom team, and Bob Coffey, harmonica harmonist. "Wild Geese Calling," with Henry Fonda and Joan Bennett, and Brenda Joyce in "Right to the Heart" may be seen on the screen.

Miss Slane, described by her advanceman as "that blonde Egyptian sorceress whose dance movements are suggestive of the ripples of the Nile," can go on from there. Of a certitude, she needs no blurbs from this pillar of not always polite piffle.

Flanking her will be such choice blooms as Joyce Nyles, Allene Dale, Doreen Lewis and Mona Murray as well as the ineluctable lovelies of the chorus.

For laughs, there will be on hand from the opening show Monday Irving Benson and Harry Ryan.

HANDSOME HINDA WASSAU will be the star at next week's show at the Globe, opening tomorrow night at one minute after midnight.

RIPPLING LIKE THE NILE, Sunya Slane will go into her dance when new bill opens Monday at the Howard.

People Want Action

A FEW DAYS AGO a distinguished Southerner arose in the national House of Representatives, addressed the Speaker, and said:

"I want to extend my sympathy to the Congressmen from New England. I have read about the fuel famine up North and the widespread suffering of the people. May I add, it's chiefly the Congressmen's own fault."

Today, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston says substantially the same thing. He is not impressed by Congressmen who shed crocodile tears over the plight of their freezing constituents; he has more faith in Congressmen who show a disposition to fight for the areas they represent.

Mr. Fitzgerald cites the long-ignored shipping bottleneck at New Jersey. An inland waterway extends from Jacksonville, Fla., to this bottleneck. Ships carrying petroleum and other commodities to New England use the waterway to avoid enemy submarines and raiders. But because there is no canal across New Jersey, the ships are obliged at that point to go out into the open Atlantic and risk sinking.

"Why," asks Mr. Fitzgerald, "don't our New England Senators and Representatives demand the immediate construction of this New Jersey canal so that thousands of barrels of oil could be safely delivered to the cold homes of our six States?"

Millions of New Englanders are asking the same question.

THERE IS A LEGACY coming to the American people, the delivery and acceptance of which every one will want delayed as long as possible—the estate of William S. Hart, first and still unique Western film star.

Bill Hart has made out his will and left his Newhall, Calif., ranch to the public.

Bill says that this legacy, consisting of 300 acres and a fine home plus a collection of art objects and trophies, is made to "pay back part of the debt I owe to the public."

But Bill is wrong, no matter how graciously, or generously wrong.

If there should be a way to balance the books accurately on the respective debts, it is the public who still owes Bill Hart a great deal.

He brought to the screen something very fine and real, very wholesome and exciting.

He mirrored, in story and image, one of the fundamental ideals of American youth: A strong and gentle man in an expansively free country, working for good and for the law, contraverting wickedness and smoothing things out for virtue.

Bill thinks that the public has forgotten him.

Wrong again.

When the scholars and the critics come to write the history of the early screen, Bill Hart's pictures will be brought out as the perfect type of a folk art that is still vital and still meaningful.

And in the long run, folk art is the root and stock of all great art.

And besides, if any modern devotee of the screen is shown a photograph of that lean, determined face, the lank figure and the firmly gripped two guns, that devotee will know immediately it is Bill Hart.

So we might say to him:

"You got no debt to pay, Old Timer. The debt's on us. We can't pay it as it should be paid, with youth and return to old days. Just stay as long as you can, because we hate to think of the time we'll be missing you."

SHOULD WE RETIRE middle-aged workers, deny them jobs in war production industries, and oblige them to spend the remainder of their lives doing nothing?

From the busy factory area of Moline, Ill., comes an emphatic "NO."

The man who voices it is William Pascoe, who observed his 90th birthday this week at his forge in a tool plant where he works a 40-hour week, producing andirons and fireplace equipment, in addition to his regular duties as blacksmith.

"I am a skilled workman," says Mr. Pascoe. "It took me years to acquire my present ability, and I find an abundance of satisfaction in the knowledge that I am helping my country in a very serious war crisis."

There are thousands of competent workmen living in unwanted retirement in Massachusetts. Like 90-year-old William Pascoe, they are anxious to serve on the home front as their sons and grandsons are serving on the war front.

They should have the opportunity.

PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS for all Boston public school pupils have been announced by Superintendent Arthur L. Gould.

Approved by the Army and Navy, the new health program will seek to detect illnesses and infirmities which are apt to become more serious as the children grow older.

If we had done something like this twenty years ago, many a young man currently labelled "4-F" in the draft would be wearing khaki or blue, and many another now handicapped by tuberculosis would be leading a normal life.

The time to treat disease is when it starts, although it is better and wiser not to let it start.

CONTEMPORARY states Charlie Chaplin has been in films 25 years. Mr. Chaplin has been in films 29 years. He signed his first film contract Dec. 16, 1913. This contract called for $150 a week. Man who first signed Charlie was Ad Kessel, who before entering the film business had been a well-known bookmaker around New York tracks . . . How is the meat situation in your neighborhood? Do you miss your steak and roast beef much? Ever hear what Elmer S. Wise said about meat eaters? Mr. Wise, a vegetarian, stated: "Eating meat began from man's wanderings when he left some garden spot and turned cannibal. A 20th century human living in a civilized community who eats meat or hunts animals for sport is emotionally and mentally moronic."

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: The name Veronica means "bringing victory" . . . The Nazis now claim to have a machine gun which is capable of shooting 3000 bullets a minute . . . "Codfish cakes are all right for breakfast," writes a Philadelphian, "but if you want something really delicious try fried catfish covered with maple syrup." Some combination, what? People who like maple syrup seem to have no control over themselves. I know a fellow who puts maple syrup on poached eggs.

STATES A BACHELOR: "The records show that never before in the United States have so many men in their 20's married widows and divorcees in their 30's than in 1942. That young men in their early 20's are attracted by women in their 30's who have been married before is not difficult to understand. Such women are more experienced, less selfish and generally more charming than younger women who have not been married. The young woman takes the attitude that she is the one to be pleased in all things. The slightly older and smarter woman knows that the man must be pleased. She tries to please him and more often than not the man is so pleased at the unique experience of having a woman trying to please him that he does everything he can to please her. I am 22. Next week I am to be married to a charming widow of 35."

PASSING BY: K. T. Stevens. Cinema cutie now taking a fling at the New York stage. Her real name is Gloria Wood. Her father, the celebrated cinema director Sam Wood, when in search of a brilliant idea, stands on his head. Mr. Wood claims, and is supported in the claim by some men of science, that standing on the head stimulates the mental mechanism. I could stand on my head fine when I was a kid, but when I tried it the other day I nearly broke my neck . . . Calvin Coolidge McIrvin. Ordinarily one of Connie Mack's pitchers but now in the United States Army. As a rule, boys named after Presidents do not become celebrated. But there have been exceptions such as Grover Cleveland Alexander, the great pitcher; Grover Cleveland Fuller, the noted jockey, and George Washington Hill, brilliant tobacco company executive.

ASIDES: In the early 1930's the Japs were manufacturing electric light bulbs that could be retailed in this country at a profit for 2½ cents each. Nipponese also made a fountain pen that could be sold for eight cents and a nine-piece coffee service that could be profitably retailed at 49 cents.

PLEASE NOTE: "The cute little trick type is all very nice to hold on your lap and cuddle with in the moonlight," writes a Bostonian. "But as wives pint-sized females are very hard to handle. I know. I have been married to two of them. My present wife is a tall girl. She is very amiable and easy to manage" . . . "So English wives are notoriously docile, you say?" writes a somewhat indignant subscriber. "I am an English wife and am not at all docile. I get my rights. The American wife is not docile, she is dominating. The American male is the world's most henpecked husband. An Englishman takes his rightful place as head of the house and really wears the trousers. His wife respects him for it. No woman respects a man she can boss around."

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—What do you know about Piscean women? A—Not much, except that the star gazers say Piscean females are never satisfied with the way a room looks and are always moving the furniture around. Last time I mentioned this a Piscean woman wrote in and said: "I had just stopped moving the furniture around in my living room when I read what you said about Piscean women." . . . Q—Let us get it straightened out. Were you or were you not born in Brooklyn? A—I was born in New York city, but my family moved to Brooklyn when I was seven years old and I was brought up in the beautiful city across the bridge.

SEES WONDERFUL RECOVERIES BY WOUNDED U. S. SOLDIERS

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, FRIDAY—Yesterday was a long day, but it was a very interesting one, after I finally succeeded in breaking the bottle on the Yorktown. It did not break on the first try, and I had to seize it again with both hands and smash it to be sure that the rapidly moving ship was properly christened. I am always very nervous until that feat is finally accomplished.

We had a very good cafeteria luncheon afterward in the apprentice school building, and then I went with Admiral and Mrs. Simons to the Naval Hospital.

Rear Admiral Sutton, who is in command, first took us through a new dormitory building for the corps men and the petty officers in the Medical Corps, and then to the wards where the men were from overseas.

* * *

I HAD THE OPPORTUNITY of speaking with a number of men from Africa and with two men from Guadalcanal. I hope we are making great strides in the treatment of burns, since that seems to be one of the most serious things from which our men suffer.

I saw some wonderful recoveries today, where the men had regained flexibility of their hands in a really remarkable way.

* * *

I SPENT A QUIET EVENING catching up on the mail. I imagine it will take me some little time to do, since when one is away there are always some things which are neglected.

I have just read W. L. White's "They Were Expendable." It is a tale of heroism and sacrifice and, withal, told so cheerfully that sometimes one can hardly believe that one understands what one is reading.

I could hardly finish this book, and had to put it aside a number of times and make myself go back to it, not because it is not beautifully written, but because there seems to be no excuse for ever considering human beings expendable.

* * *

IF WE EVER AGAIN are guilty of leaving people without the best possible equipment in adequate amounts, in a world which requires such equipment, then somehow we should make it a prerequisite that the older people who are responsible are promptly sent out to die in these frontier battles. Why should the young always be expendable for the mistakes of the old?

I have felt guilty ever since I have read that book. If ever again I do not face the truth of a situation and do my best to make my fellow-citizens face it, too, I hope I get my proper punishment.

THE MARCH of EVENTS

By BENJAMIN DECASSERES

IT WAS NAPOLEON who said, substantially, "I can always find a professor to justify anything I want to put over. Besides, they write in such an incomprehensible jargon that the people can't understand what they are talking about." In the main, Napoleon was right, and the average professor hasn't changed. Have you ever listened to one of them orate on "political economy" on the radio or tried to read some of the books they confect on very simple subjects like war, capitalism or Communism? Well, I know your answer. It's a sort of weary Bronx gurgle.

But here is a professor who is one of the exceptions, and I'm introducing him to you with a cheer or two. He is Harley L. Lutz, professor of public finance at Princeton University. His theme is the most tremendous that can confront the American people—the maintenance of private enterprise, the sacredness (yes "sacredness," my Red friends!) of private property and of liberty. I quote from his crystal-clear article in "The Tax Review."

First, we've all asked ourselves what is meant by the system of private enterprise? Here it is in a few words:

"The system of free private enterprise is one in which the production and distribution of goods and services are performed mainly by individuals or privately owned corporations. It is not completely free in the sense of being completely exempt from any public regulation. Such has never been the case. It is free in that there are no barriers, legal, social or political, no barriers of race, creed, birth or breeding, which prevent anyone from engaging in some way in the activities or services performed by enterprise."

WHY ARE OUR LIBERTIES tied up with the institution of private property?

"Since economic liberty means the freedom to own and use property, it follows that all other elements in the democratic ideal—freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of assembly, the right of petition, freedom of religion, trial by jury and so forth—are related to and derive their strength from the institution of private property. Free property ownership and use is the true badge of freedom."

What should be the government's relation to business?

"Government's regulatory function should be akin to that of the traffic officer on the highway. The purpose of good traffic regulation is to secure the maximum movement of traffic that is consistent with the safety of all travellers. A good traffic officer does not halt the traffic in order to hold a prayer meeting or to engage in a knock-down and drag-out fight with the driver of a vehicle."

There you will find more clear-visioned common-sense than in a ton of befuddled volumes.

OLIVIA'S BABY PICTURES HELP WAR EFFORT

By Louella O. Parsons

Copyright, 1943, by International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23 (INS)—When Olivia de Havilland was a little girl, living in Tokyo, she never dreamed snapshots that her mother took of her and Joan Fontaine would be of value to Uncle Sam in winning the war. And it isn't the cute little girl pictures of Livvie and Joan the Army Intelligence is interested in—it's the background of many of the "snaps," showing clearly bridges, public buildings and roads in Japan.

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND

Ernest Haller, the cameraman on "Devotion," has done a wonderful job, at the request of the government, in enlarging and bringing out some of the scenes that were poorly photographed or had faded. So now the good old family album has gone to war—and Livvie is proud to turn it over.

* * *

THERE IS A VERY GOOD chance that Betsy Blair, Gene Kelly's wife, will play the coveted Mary Anderson role in Hunt Stromberg's "Guest in the House." A talent scout from the Stromberg offices saw Betsy, admired her, and when he discovered she was an actress invited her to come to the studio for a test. Hunt is particularly eager to sign a girl who is known to movies and yet one who can act and look the part, and, well, Betsy seems to fill that description.

* * *

"I'M WONDERING if Arleen Whelan will be brought back to the screen for 'Doughboys,' the stage play in which she has achieved a hit. Warners have clamped down $250,000 for privelege of filming it. Through the grapevine route I hear that the red-headed, former manicurist will be signed to play the part she created on the stage."

* * *

THE HAYS OFFICE will watch every foot of the film of "Tropicana" with Mae West and Victor Moore. When Mae made the Universal picture, "My Little Chickadee," women's clubs all over the country as well as parent-teachers' associations and the League of Decency were upset, and this is no time to have trouble with any organization that stands for public morale. There is no reason why Mae can't come back if she is willing to be guided by the studio. Goodness knows Victor Moore is well loved and never vulgar; so perhaps with Gregory Ratoff's advice the picture can be funny without shocking the natives.

* * *

THE WAVES, sitting in the front row at the Bob Hope show at the naval base, nearly tumbled into the aisle when Cary Grant walked in with Barbara Hutton. Cary and Barbara went to the Naval Aid Auxiliary canteen with Mrs. Darryl Zanuck and Mrs. Milton Bren, who wanted Barbara to see with her own eyes the canteen she has so generously supported for over a year. Bob Hope spied Cary and brought him on the stage, and together they put on an hour's show with some of the naval talent helping. Altogether it was a great evening. Barbara has been so modest about what she has done to make this canteen possible, and as one who has been there and seen what it means to these boys in the Coast Guard and Navy I can only say she has made a lot of our boys happy.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Irene Hervey, Mrs. Allan Jones in private life, was in a serious automobile accident. She suffered a broken kneecap and had to have eight stitches taken on her lip—fortunately on the inside, and her face will not be marred; Bette Davis is home sick with laryngitis and her battle with Miriam Hopkins has been postponed until Saturday; Joan Fontaine battled for her rights and gets top billing in "Jane Eyre"; Ida Lupino is looking for an apartment near the studio and Nancy Coleman expects to buy a house not too far away; the beautiful music in "Casablanca" has been acquired by the Philharmonic Orchestra and will be heard at a concert; the Adrian opening was crowded to the doors—proof that women are still interested in clothes. Stopped to talk with Roz Russell, whose mother had just arrived to remain with her until the birth of the baby. Roz told me she is commuting between here and Palm Springs. Mariam Ouspenskaya had a ringside seat and Janet Gaynor was easily the best dressed woman there. She looked so cute in a perky hat which matched her suit; Col. Darryl Zanuck is off for Washington Sunday.

Broadway's Voice

-:- By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—Within a week or two, Mickey Rooney and Ava Gardner are scheduled to announce that their "sincere attempt to make a go of it" has failed . . . Bob Hope will receive a citation from Washington for his magnificent work selling war bonds and entertaining soldiers in Army camps . . . The Bette Davis-Miriam Hopkins fights during the filming of "Old Acquaintance" were so funny that Mark Hellinger is going to do a picture based on the actresses' feud . . . Tony Martin, now in the Army, and Tommye Adams, the chorine, are a heartilery barrage . . . Edgar Hammell, one of the prize shipbuilders of the last war, is going into business for the government again and is expected to compete with Henry Kaiser for speed in delivering the goods . . . Noel Toy, the stripteaser who can't function in these parts because of Commr. Moss' edict, will soon blossom forth as the leader of a rumba band . . . Only her intimates know that a New York artist is trying to cut out Jean Gabin in Marlene Dietrich's romantic life.

NAT KARSON expects to produce a Broadway musical version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" with Shirley Temple and Bill Robinson in the leading roles . . . RKO is terribly happy that a picture called "Ladies' Day," which they hurried along to release for the last World Series, had to be postponed until this year's baseball season. It features Jackie Briggs (now Ginger Rogers' husband) in a very romantic role . . . It looks now as though "This Is the Army" may play a return engagement in New York before going overseas.

TOPS IN THE TOWN: Jane Pickens' charming entertainment at La Martinique . . . The ever-lovin' Hartmans doing their delirious "conga" at the Waldorf's Wedgwood Room . . . The Cathedral Canteen on E. 51st st., where doughboys can get a hamburger, a stamp, or a shower bath . . . Carmen Amaya, the exciting gypsy dancer at La Conga.

* * *

DENNIS DAY and Kenny Baker are just as mad at each other as two boys can be . . . The inside of the feud between the Norths and the Ringlings over whether or not the circus will be put on this year as an interesting tale. Robert Ringling insists that it be presented as usual . . . His cousins, John Ringling North and Buddy North, are said to believe it's an unpatriotic move to send out animals and scenery in railroad cars that are needed to transport soldiers, and that if Ringling won't call the circus off, at least all profits ought to go to the government . . . So far, there's no indication of which branch of the family will win out.

How to Win Battle

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Copyright, 1943, King Features, Synd., Inc. World Rights Reserved.

ONE of our great business organizations used an advertising slogan lately. Sorry I can't remember the sponsor, but here are my apologies, gentlemen, and my gratitude for six words which should be immortal—"Morale Is Made of Little Things."

Never have we Americans needed that phrase so much. "Morale"—that's a dramatic word. We've never used it frequently before and we're apt to attach a lot of fireworks to it now. We think it should sweep through us with a great surge of courage and exaltation, lifting us above the common fears and discouragement . . . blotting out our resentment . . . glorifying our lives.

We think it should fire us to heroic deeds. And if it doesn't we feel cheated and embittered. But we're wrong. Morale isn't composed like that.

"Morale is made of little things."

It's made of the little things that happen in us when we are quite alone. Physically we may be surrounded by many people—or we may be solitary, looking at an empty chair, a discarded suit. But whether we are in a crowd or alone, morale is always a private matter, a personal battle.

Morale is the conflict between your petty self and the ideal vision of your soul.

Morale is your spiritual battle front where you win or surrender the noble issues of life.

Morale is the choice you make between being a narrow, prejudiced human animal or a part of an eternal and magnificent cause.

IT IS MADE of the smile you give when your heart is wedged in your throat.

It is made of the patience and self control you exhibit when the office work is scrambled through lack of manpower. It is made of the special dinner you concocted for a worried husband and a clamoring bunch of youngsters in spite of rationing. It is made of that extra war tax you are paying willingly when your pocket is already bankrupt.

It is made of the contemptuous words you withhold when you hear your neighbor griping over some trifling discomfort and your own heart is wrung at the thought of your own boy in Africa.

It isn't a sudden burst of strength or splendor handed from the heavens.

It's the brief bit of beauty we catch as we hurry along—

It's the hand clasp and friendship we stop to give—

It's the prayer we breathe when we hear the bells at twilight—

It's the tears we swallow before anyone can see them.

"Morale is made of little things."

GOD GIVE ME THE STRENGTH TO REMEMBER THE LITTLE THINGS, FOR THEY WILL WIN THE BATTLE.

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Staff Writer

The ban on pleasure driving is causing a social revolution in the East. It is driving thousands of men home to their wives every night.

Thousands of women are seeing their husbands under artificial light for the first time and they don't look good. The kiddies have stopped asking "who is the man we only see at breakfast?"

What is going to happen to the good will court when the wives begin to complain "my husband stays home every night . . . I can't drive him out of the house!"

And what will the courts say when wives petition for a separation to make their marriage a success?

"What's the matter?" says the judge. "Does he leave you alone?" "That's just the trouble," she says. "He won't. Night after night he sits there staring at me and cracking his knuckles."

Women marry for better or worse and the worse of it is 24-hour stretches of looking at the man they once thought was a prince on a white horse.

After the first few weeks he begins to look like the horse.

Thought for the day: Home on the range.

N. Y. Race Fans Will Walk if Necessary

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—Along Broadway:

They are planning, if necessary, to walk to the New York race tracks during the coming season . . . It has been definitely decided that racing will go on as usual at the various New York tracks . . . It is argued that the racegoers are a hardy lot and that they will somehow manage to get to the tracks and place a few bob on their favorite nags.

LOU SMITH

From Florida are coming wires from horsemen asking for shipping money back north . . . Most of them have been unable to get stall accommodations at New Orleans and they would like to get back home . . . Many of these horsemen say they will race their thoroughbreds in New England this year . . . The three New England tracks, Suffolk Downs, Narragansett Park and Rockingham Park, insist they will run . . . Lou Smith says he will have race-goers hauled from the railroad station at Lawrence to Rockingham by horses in the event the ban on using gas to go to sports events is not lifted . . . The opinion here is that the restrictions on the use of gas will stick until the war is won . . . The argument that race tracks pay millions of dollars in taxes will not prevail as the government feels it can get this tax money from some other source . . . The task now, it is argued, is to save gas and tires as part of the program to win the war

New York taxis refuse to take people to theaters and to other places of amusement . . . When three ladies insisted they would not leave a taxicab until dropped in front of the entrance to a theater the driver of the cab declared he would keep the meter running, stop the cab and wait until the ladies got out . . . The ladies finally decided they didn't want to go to the theater and that they would be satisfied to be left at a stop a half block from the place of amusement . . . This is the usual procedure . . . Folks going to theaters, movie houses or night clubs tell the taxi driver to take them to a friendly corner not too far from the point of their destination . . . As far as going to the races are concerned, taxi drivers say that is "out."

Jimmy Johnston Rates Jack Johnson as Best

In a series of sports articles which will be released next week Jimmy Johnston rates Jack Johnson as the greatest heavyweight champion who ever lived and Max Baer was the worst . . . Miss Margie Reagan, Johnston's capable secretary who knows more important people along Broadway than anyone, is back working following an illness of two years . . . Miss Reagan has been associated with Johnston's office for many years, and has a fine knowledge of boxing and other sports.

Brooklyn fans are quite jubilant over the acquisition of Cooney and Waner, formerly with the Braves . . . They realize that both players are veterans, but they feel that between the two they should get at least one full season out of them . . . Cooney and Waner each have played for Brooklyn . . . Leo Durocher's draft standing is still very much up in the air . . . Durocher is in class 1-A, but has not yet been called for service . . . Leo recently had a physical checkup at the Mayo Clinic, but he said it was merely of a routine nature.

Rickey Opposes Freezing of Salaries

Branch Rickey was expected to slash salaries in Brooklyn . . . This is why Rickey is so much interested in the plan to freeze the salaries of ballplayers . . . The Dodgers have always received liberal salaries . . . It is not believed that the transportation problem will seriously effect the Dodgers, Yanks or Giants as most of the fans attending the games here use the elevated or tubes.

Willie Pep, featherweight, is one of the hottest boxing attractions in town . . . He is good for a $50,000 gate any time he shows in the Garden.

BAY MEADOWS MEET GETS O.K.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23 (AP)—The California horse racing board granted Bay Meadows race track permission for a meeting of 25 days minimum, with the provision it may be extended if the law limiting charity days is amended. Military authorities previously had approved the application.

The track will open Feb. 20.

Bay Meadows was the only California track to operate in the past year. It ran a successful 57-day meeting last fall. Plans for the spring meeting call for a $25,000 handicap, which is expected to attract Whirlaway, world champion money winner.

SOUTHWICK OF HUSKIES RUNS FOUR RACES IN DAY

By HERB FINNEGAN

This was to be an eventful day in the life of Raymond Southwick, promising young Northeastern freshman sprinter. The Quincy boy, who never had a track shoe on before he met Coach Gerry Tatton at N. U., was to run the dash and 300 in the N. U. freshman-Exeter meet this afternoon, then duplicate the feat in tonight's open meet at the "Y."

It is a full day for the youngster but he can stand it. He's got a solid cross country background and is "full of running." He's a life-saver for Coach Tatton who until a week ago faced a long dual meet season without a top-notch sprinter in his cast.

This was something new for Tatton, who a year ago saw Frannie Corcoran, Bill Friary and Reggie Cooke go undefeated during the season against Bates, New Hampshire, Holy Cross, etc. Friary i fact did 9.9 against H. C. But all three enlisted and Tatton was left without a sprinter.

Thus he was pleasantly surprised when young Southwick, in his first competitive start, won the dash in the informal meet against Harvard last Saturday. All this week the kid has been flying until Tatton now says confidently: "I honestly believe he'll be better than Corcoran, Friary or Cooke when he gets some experience. In fact he's mighty hard to beat right now."

DODDS IN TWO-MILE

Northeastern has several other men in tonight's meet who are hard to beat. Bob Carroll, who did 1.55.3 to win the N. E. intercollegiate half-mile two years ago and who defeated Gilbert Dodds from scratch in the "Y" 1000 a year ago, is favored to take tonight's 1000 from Bob Miiller of Tech, Tony Luciano of Seton Hall, Tom Joyce of B. C. and Ed Smith of Tufts.

George Welch, Jr., and Delmo Alberghini may prove too fleet o er the hurdles for Tufts' Ted Sparrow.

Francis Kennedy, from Rindge, may cop the 300, and Walter Crowley, former South Shore interscholastic mile champion, can place in the 1000. Both are N. U. freshmen.

Highlight of the meet of course will be Gil Dodds' appearance in the two-mile, and Herb McHenley's Roston debut in the dash and 300. Dodds already is a national champion in the mile and looks capable of defeating Greg Rice at two miles this winter. McHenley, from the West Indies, is a potential national dash champion.

★ ★ ★

In his first try wearing rubber-soled shoes, McHenley did 4.6 for the 40 and 5.5 for the 50 in time trials at B. C. . . . Harry Drake of Tufts is capable of 1:15 for the 600 . . . Bowdoin's Alan Hillman is entered in the 1000 and will add spice to the event if he appears . . . George Welch of N. U. was an also-ran on the Newton High track team when Don McKinnon was the ace there. Last week Welch beat McKinnon in a trial heat of the hurdles in the N. U.-Harvard informal meet, then dropped the final by a scant six inches. "Won't be satisfied till I beat him, says Welch, who has made remarkable strides as a hurdler under Tatton, an old hurdler himself.

16,000 to See Pics In Week-End Series

Despite the fact that they have contributed 58 men to the Allied armed forces, Boston's Olympics are playing such fine hockey that they expect a crowd of 16,000 at their week-end games with New York Rovers at Boston Garden.

The games will be played tonight and tomorrow night, both starting at 8:15. It is the first Sunday night game the Pics have scheduled here in two years and is brought about by the Silver Skates Derby which will be held in the Garden tomorrow afternoon.

SHORE'S FIND

The Pics have lost Bob Priestley to the Army Air Corps since they last played here but tonight they will have a new defenseman in the person of Don Nichols and a partially new wing in Gerry Desrosiers.

Nichols, from Calumet, Mich., is 22-years old and a product of Eddie Shore's. Like Shore, he's a good rusher and will add zip to the Pics attack. He's a husky youngster and impressed Coach Hago Harrington very much in practice. This will be his first start in a Boston uniform.

Desrosiers has been sidelined since the start of the season with an ankle injury. He was supposed to have played last week but the grippe laid him low. He definitely will be on hand for tonight's game, however, and will take his place on the second wave with Jerry Bauer and Bob Jeremiah.

'Pics and Rovers have met seven times this year, 'Pics winning four.

Yankees Get Nick Etten From Phillies

The New York Yankees today had a new first baseman in Nick Etten; the latter gentleman was rubbing his eyes like a man released from a dungeon, wondering just what stroke of good fortune had released him from the last-place lease-lenders of the National League—the Phillies, and around the baseball circuit the boys were trying to figure out just how Nicholas was ever waived out of the National loop.

In a deal which sent Pitcher Allen Gettel and First Baseman Ed Whitner Levy and cash to the Phils, President Ed Barrow of the Yankees acquired Etten and solved, temporarily, his first headache.

Johnny Strum and Tommy Henrich's departure last year left Cousin Egbert with a gaping hole at the initial sack and there were rumors the Yankees were after McQuinn of the Browns and Camilli of the National League's Brooklyn Dodgers.

The deal for the former, if there was a deal, fell through months ago and Camilli has decided to retire. It is the latter fact that caused many raised eyebrows around the lukewarm store league here today.

BARTOLO READY FOR PEP, CALLURA

Sal Bartolo, East Boston, today was back hammering at the door of the featherweight titlists, either Willie Pep or Jackie Callura, as a result of a convincing two-round technical knockout win over Carmine Fatta, Brooklyn, before 3000 patrons at the Arena.

Sal Bartolo

Pep is the N. Y. titleholder and Callura the N. B. A. champion, and Bartolo, off his showing last night, is a worthy match for either of them.

In the eight-round semi-final, Leo Sawacki, Worcester, 149, took a divided decision over Jimmy Taylor, Lowell, 150. It was a slugfest all the way.

Jimmy Sauer, Cambridge, 149, U. S. amateur and All-America champion, celebrated his professional debut with a kayo win over Tony Delgado, Worcester, 147. It took Sauer little more than a minute to chill Delgado in a scheduled six.

Steve Kronis, South End, 131, stopped Jackie Smallwood, Boston, 135, in the second of their booked six-rounder.

Roy Andrews, Lowell, 135, Dave's kid brother, got a slim four-round decision over Jimmy Pinckney, South End, 130.

Frankie Ross, North End, 144, and Billy Napper, Roxbury, 144, concluded the program with a slam-bang six-round draw.

400 GIRLS, BOYS COMPETE IN SKATES DERBY

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, SATURDAY, JAN. 23, 1943

Beautiful Adele Inge Tops Featured Cast

A sparkling four-hour ice classic goes on in the Boston Garden tomorrow afternoon when the eighth annual Silver Skates Derby sweeps into action at 1:30 p. m.

A great program of ice racing, punctuated with a brilliant figure skating card, makes the Derby the top event of the skating season.

More than 400 speed skaters, boys and girls ranging in age from youngsters making their first bid for fame up to the highly skilled seniors, have entered the Derby.

In other years the racing has furnished a thousand thrills with speeding fields rounding the Garden ice area at terrific pace and this year's entries promise to surpass all previous efforts.

The official staff handling the program is headed by Ben Levias, an expert director, and includes so many experienced ice race followers that the card is sure to run at high speed, with never a break in the action.

ADELE INGE HEADS STARS

Adele Inge, beautiful professional figure skater who has been thrilling New York audiences with her spectacular ice acrobatic stunts, heads the featured cast.

Edi Scholdan, Viennese men's pro skating champion and famed teacher at the Arena and Colorado Springs, likewise has top billing, and there's New Yorker Ted Meza, king of skating comedians, to furnish the throng with sidesplitting laughter.

From Boston's own amateur figure skating ranks come two girls who in normal times would be pointing for Olympic Games titles—Janie Weiss of Walpole, and Sandylee Weille of Brookline. Alice Quessy of Medford, skating drum majorette, and the great Lebel Family of Meriden, Ct., barrel jumpers who have added to their thrilling routines, round out the ice list.

Karle Rohde, dance band genius who has assembled the musical backgrounds of the nation's top skating extravaganzas, will have his own band to furnish the musical backdrop, one of the most important parts of any ice show.

PLENTY OF SEATS

Put them all together and they make the finest of all the eight Silver Skates Derbies which have thrilled huge gatherings each winter.

Best of all, there are thousands of tickets left and the top price, for reserved seats, is only 55 cents. Unreserved seats, and there are more than 10,000 of these, are 44 cents, and tickets for children 13 years of age or under are only 30 cents.

Tickets aplenty are still on sale today at the Garden and at the James W. Brine sporting goods store on Summer st., corner of Devonshire st., only a minute's walk from the department store shopping center.

This truly will be what it often has been titled, The Ice Carnival for Everyone.

Don't miss it.

HUDSON, WAKEFIELD SIXES FAVORED AT ARENA

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Hudson and Wakefield high schools, dead locked for the leadership of the Eastern Mass. Interscholastic Hockey League, will probably be forced to continue their first place haggling, both being favored to pass their seventh tests of the season in the weekly meeting of the circuit at the Arena tonight.

Hudson will stack up against Lexington in the opening game on the program while the defending champions will be facing off with Natick in the nightcap of the first doubleheader.

At the same time, these coleaders will be boosting their individual candidates for honors in the scoring race.

Hudson's aces, Bob Morgan and Dan Beauregard, will be in for the tougher assignment against an aggressive, fourth place Minuteman outfit. Morgan has piled up eight goals and a pair of assists to take step into top place in this race while Beauregard is only a pair of tallies behind his teammate. Neither will have an easy time pushing the puck past Lexington's goalie, Carl Wernberg.

Malden, without its ace, captain and center Bill Lowenstein, now in the Navy, will probably prove the second victim of Somerville and its clever goalie, Johnny "Stonewall" Jackson, while Brookline and Dedham will battle it out on even terms in the other pair of games.

SHAUGHNESSY SEEN NEXT PITT COACH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (INS)—Clark Shaughnessy, football coach at the University of Maryland, said today that he would take over the reins as head grid mentor at the University of Pittsburgh if "Pitt makes an offer so attractive I cannot refuse."

Commenting on reports that he would replace Charley Bowser as Pittsburgh's football coach, Shaughnessy admitted that he had been "sounded out." He said that he might make a trip to Pittsburgh within the next few days to discuss the subject with Pitt athletic officials.

Shaughnessy, an exponent of the famed T formation, declared that reports from Pittsburgh that negotiations with Pitt officials would be completed in 48 hours were premature and embarrassing.

"Pitt officials," he said, 'approached me 10 days or two weeks ago in a general way, but nothing definite, to my knowledge, has been decided at present.

"They asked me then if I would be interested in taking over as football coach. I told them naturally anyone would be interested in a proposition that would be for their betterment. They asked me if I would consider an offer. I told them to go ahead and make one but I told them that I was very happy at Maryland and considered it an up and coming football school."

Smythe Still One Up on Ross

By BILL GRIMES

Let's by-pass the Ross-Selke flare-up and rehash the bitter rivalry, which has made all Bruins-Toronto games played in the last decade the greatest attractions in the National Hockey League.

It was started by Conn Smythe during the 1924 Christmas holidays. Smythe came here on that occasion with Toronto Varsity to play a series with Boston College and the B. A. A. During an argument at the Arena, Smythe offered to bet $1000 Varsity could beat the Bruins.

That story made the headlines but, naturally, it didn't set well with Art Ross.

Three years later, Smythe entered the N. H. L. with his Maple Leafs. He might have forgotten the $1000 bet incident, but Ross hadn't.

SMYTHE GOT OUT

Late in that season, Smythe was looking for a right winger. Ross sold him Jimmy Herberts who was all washed up as a major leaguer at that time for $12,000. To further complicate matters, Herberts was so "high" the night he reported in Toronto that he lined up with the Hawks instead of the Leafs.

Within three minutes after Herberts' debut as a Leaf, the directors of the club swarmed into Smythe's box, yelling "We wus robbed." Smythe slipped out of the middle by shipping Herberts to Detroit that very night, for $12,000.

Although the Detroit deal saved Smythe in the eyes of his director it didn't get Ross off Conn's blacklist.

Conn Smythe Art Ross

BRUINS PAID PLENTY

The next year, Smythe palmed "Brandy" Bill Carson off on Ross for $25,000. Carson was even more washed up than Herberts had been and, like "Sailor" Jim, training rules meant nothing to him. He'd disappear for days and none of Ross' gestapo was ever able to get a trace of him.

Smythe went two up on Ross, when he demanded cash, players and rights on players to waive his rights on George Owen in 1929. He was at the University Club when he received word that the Bruins had signed Owen and that the former Harvard star would play that night against the Maple Leafs.

Pres. Calder informed Smythe by telephone from Ottawa that unless the Bruins met whatever proposition the Toronto club made, Owen could not play for Boston. Smythe demanded his pound of flesh and got it, approximately $35,000 in money and player.

During the 1935-36 season, Smythe came to the conclusion that Bill "Flash" Hollett might be a great lacrosse player but that he'd never be anything but a run-of-the-mill puck chaser.

CONN STILL ONE UP

Apparently, Ross did see eye to eye with Smythe on Hollett for the Bruins paid Toronto $16,500 for the "Flash." Smythe was so sure that he had rifed Ross again that he had photostatic copies made of cheque.

Today, Hollett is rated as one of the greatest all around hockey players the game ever produced.

When he went into active service as a major commanding the 30th Battery, Conn was still one up on Ross and the Bruins and Maple Leafs were still turning them away at the Toronto and Boston gardens, all because of a feud which started over a $1000 bet Varsity could beat the original Bruins.

Through The Binoculars

By BILL CORUM

One of the finest racing writers ever to work on a newspaper was an engaging chap named Peter Burnaugh, who went to New York from his native Kentucky to be an actor, but who couldn't resist the call of bugles in the afternoon.

Pete died suddenly some years back during a fall meeting at Empire City, just when he was beginning to be nationally known as a writer.

Shortly after the famous and ill-fated Epinard, recently reported as having died a dray horse in Paris following the German occupation, visited this country, Burnaugh made a trip to Europe.

PETE THE SCRIBE

He came back in the late fall and the first time I saw him after his return was at the United Hunts Meeting on Election Day. That was when they ran the Hunts at the Belmont Park Terminal across the Long Island railroad tracks from Belmont Park.

The Terminal provided a weird up hill and down dale turf course and just why it should have been used in preference to Belmont itself, I never quite understood. But it was, and don't let anybody tell you that going racing there wasn't fun.

We came up to the last race on this particulare day, a hurdle affair over brush, and there was a horse in it called Pete the Scribe, which had been named for Burnaugh.

"I've got a notion," I said to Pete, "to bet on that bum named after you."

"Maybe it's a hunch, at that," he replied, "because on the last day I was at the races at Newmarket, Pierre Werthheimer (he was the man who owned Epinard) gave me a tip on a three-year-old of his named Corum and it won at telephone numbers."

WRITES WIN TICKET

So I went down to Johnny Murtha, my commissioner of that period and a fellow I had nicknamed "The hard rock of Rockville Center," because he used to live there, and asked him the price against Pete the Scribe.

"To you," said Johnny, all but laughing in my face, 'twenty-five to one and your two dollars back."

So I gave him my two dollars and wrote "Pete the Scribe" on one of those flimsy little paper cards the bookies used to give you in those days.

It was one of those long races, two miles or thereabouts. But, one by one, practically every other horse in the race either fell or threw his jockey (I swear I hadn't put in "the fix"), and Pete the Scribe finally walked, and walked is the word majestically home completely unattended.

"The easiest fifty I ever made," I boasted to the boys on the bench that was laughingly known as the press-box. 'He came out in the light in my figures."

The human "Pete the Scribe," a Kentucky gentleman of the old school, didn't say a word. But I had a feeling he was thinking very hard. Which just shows you how easy it is for a smart handicapper to pick winners.

RANGERS' UNPOPULARITY PAYS DIVIDENDS AT GATE

It's probably just as well that Hamie Moore didn't put "Dit" Clapper's uniform in his trunks when he packed for this Detroit and Chicago trip. For if "Busher" Jackson's shoulder, which was injured in the first period Thursday night, fails to respond to treatment, Clapper would be out on the defense tomorrow night against the Blackhawks, regardless of his order to remain out of action . . . The New York Rangers haven't won a game in nine starts. Their last victory was over Bruins on Dec. 29. Nevertheless the Blue Shirts are cashing in on their unpopularity in New York for the fans are putting it on the line to see them get knocked off.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23 (AP)—The University of Pittsburgh is in the market for a high class football coach and Clark Daniel Shaughnessy, former Stanford mentor and widely known exponent of the "T" formation is a leading candidate for the job.
